

Cliches

You know what I mean

In all fairness

When all is said + done

Near as dammit

The grass is greener on the other side of the fence

On the other hand

You know

Who's to say they're wrong

You can't judge a book by its cover

What I'm trying to say is

To cut a long story short

There's always 2 sides to a story

It's common knowledge

We'll just have to wait + see

In the meantime though

You know what I mean

People in glass houses shouldn't throw stones

It'll all come out in the wash

To put it in a nutshell

Today's news will be tomorrow's cheap paper.
